1. Executive Summary

Intent: Get top customers by total card spending in the last 90 days

Business Summary

The analysis focuses on identifying the top 20 customers with the highest total card spending over the last 90 days. The dataset provides insights into customer spending habits, which can be leveraged to tailor banking services and promotions. The top spenders are crucial for the bank's revenue, and understanding their behavior can inform targeted marketing strategies.

Key Metrics

- * Total number of customers in the dataset: 15
- * Mean total spending: $71,805.86
- * Maximum total spending: $104,880.20
- * Top spenders include Hira Khan with $104,880.20 and Omar Ahmed with $95,049.21

Trend Analysis

The data indicates a significant variation in spending among customers, with a standard deviation of $20,341.27. The top 25% of customers have a total spending above $87,076.32, suggesting a high-value segment that the bank may want to focus on.

Recommendations

To capitalize on the high-spending customer segment, the bank should consider offering personalized services, such as premium credit cards or exclusive rewards programs, to Hira Khan and other top spenders. Additionally, targeted marketing campaigns can be designed to acquire more customers with similar spending habits, potentially increasing the bank's revenue.
