Report: Card vs Non-Card Transaction Volume by Customer Segment

Generated By: Bob Williams (manager)
Date: 2026-02-13 12:09:15

1. Executive Summary

Intent: Compare transaction volume between card and non-card transactions for each customer segment

Business Summary

The dataset provides insights into customer transaction behavior, with a total of 30 transactions recorded across 20 customers. The transaction types are primarily DEBIT and TRANSFER, with total amounts ranging from $30,847.86 to $320,340.41. This analysis aims to compare the total transaction amount for card and non-card transactions for each customer segment.

Key Metrics

- * Total transactions: 30
- * Mean total amount: $120,731.09
- * Transaction types: DEBIT (17), TRANSFER (13)

Trend Analysis

The data indicates that DEBIT transactions are more frequent than TRANSFER transactions. However, without explicit information on card and non-card transactions, we can infer that DEBIT transactions might be related to card transactions, while TRANSFER transactions could be non-card transactions.

Recommendations

Based on the analysis, we recommend:

- * Segregating card and non-card transactions to gain clearer insights into customer behavior
- * Analyzing the mean total amount of $120,731.09 to identify opportunities for targeted marketing and customer engagement
- * Exploring the reasons behind the higher frequency of DEBIT transactions to optimize transaction processing and customer experience.
